Edward Roberts, Felin Pandy Tudur. Edward Roberts was born in 1882, the 6th of eight children born to the miller Robert Roberts and his wife Mary Roberts, who married in Liverpool, before moving to Felin Einion, Efenechdyd. They then came to Felin Pandy Tudur, where Edward was born. He lost an arm during the war but received an artificial arm with a hook as his hand.

Francis Jones, Pen y Fedw. He was born in Pandy Tudur on 1-2-1893, one of 6 children born to Richard and Jane Jones. He moved to Bootle, from where he joined the army and the R.W.F. (no. 36534). He was wounded in September 1917. Whilst in hospital, he met a nurse named Laura from Caernarfon, and they married and had two daughters.

William Richard Parry, Penddaeardor. Following the family's move from Tan y Castell they lived at Penddaeardor, where William was brought up. Two of his brothers died in 1918, one from double pneumonia, and the other from influenza. William survived the war and the flu and following his marriage he lived with his family at Twlc, Llangernyw.

John Robert Morris, Glan Dŵr Terrace. He married Sarah Ann Williams at Llanddewi Church on 10-7-1897, and their son Harold was born the following year. Both father and son enlisted in the army. Harold was killed in France in 1916, but John Robert Morris survived, although he was also injured the same year. Following the war, they went to live at Fron Gallen, Llangernyw.

Richard Thomas Jones, Ty'n y Ffynnon. He was born in Cwm Penmachno, about 1888, the fourth of six children born to Richard and Margaret Jones. At the turn of the century the family moved to Ty'n Ffynnon, Pandy Tudur. Apart from his period in the army, he worked in a bank throughout his life, firstly at Birkenhead and later at Bootle.

John Robert Jones, Ty'n y Ffynnon. He was the brother of Richard (above) and the 5th of the family's children. He joined the army on 11-11-1914. It was reported in June 1915: Mr. J. R. Jones, formerly of Bootle, and more recently of London, has been promoted to Second Lieutenant in the 17th Batt., Royal Welsh Fusiliers, which is now in Llandudno. He lost his left arm in the war. By 1919 he had recovered and was back in London.

Thomas Morris, Glan Dŵr. He married Mary and they lived at 2 Glan Dŵr. Falmai, formerly of Pen y Bont, was his daughter.

William Williams, Llwyn Du Uchaf. He was born on 29-4-1896, the son of David and Jane Williams, Llwyndu Uchaf. His mother died when he was 3 years old, and he was brought up by his grandmother. He returned to Llwyndu in his teens and enlisted in the army when he was 19. He did not fight in the war, but was sent over to France to recover British corpses from the beach. At the end of the war he returned to farm Llwyndu.
